SMASH RUSSIAN ATTACK OVER ICE

Snow Paralyzes Southern Ohio Traffic

DRIFTS CLOG ROADS, STORM SWEEPS OHIO

State Puts 2,500 Men to Work Battling Snow; 2-inch Fall Blankets County.

MORE SNOW, COLDER, DUE

8 Inches Reported in Southern Ohio, Motor Travel at Standstill.

The Mansfield area got its first real snow of the season today as the worst winter storm in two years swept central and southern Ohio, blocking highways in many sections.

Virtually all secondary roads and a number of main highways southwest of Columbus were reported clogged by drifts this morning after an all-night snow which totaled eight inches in the Washington Court House area. Fourteen trucks were reported stalled on route 3 in Clinton county between Columbus and Cincinnati.

"It's the worst snow storm in two years," H. S. Perry, assistant maintenance chief of the state highway department, said today at Columbus. "We've got 2,500 men working throughout the state and it's really a battle," he added.

Mansfield escaped the worst of the storm, but more than two inches of snow covered the ground at noon and it was still snowing. The snow began in Mansfield about 6 a. m. and the fall was heaviest before 9 a. m.

The forecast was for more snow and slightly colder weather tonight and snow flurries Thursday.

Spread Cinders, Salt.

Although traffic was slowed on Mansfield streets, main highways and county roads in this area were reported in good condition. The state and county highway departments and city street department had their trucks busy spreading cinders and salt during the morning.

There were no snow plows operating, but highway officials

World traveller and lecturer, Patterson is scheduled to make the nominating address at the Republican National convention next summer that will place U. S. Senator Robert A. Taft of Cincinnati in the presidential primary race.

DOHERTY, EMPIRE BUILDER, DEAD

Founder of Far-Flung Cities Service Company Dies After Pneumonia Attack.

(By Associated Press)

PHILADELPHIA — Death has ended the success saga of Henry L. Doherty—the poor boy who realized an American dream of business empire.

The 69-year-old head of the far-flung Cities Service company died last night of bronchial pneumonia.

At his bedside in Temple University hospital were his widow, Mrs. Grace Doherty, and W. A. Jones, executive vice president of Cities Service.

Plagued for years by arthritis, Doherty had been undergoing one of periodic treatments for the condition. His physician, Dr. Charles Leonard Brown, said he was stricken with pneumonia two weeks ago.

Doherty's fortunes had their inception in Columbus, O., where he was born May 15, 1870—a newsboy at 10, gas company manager at 20, and so up the scale to millions at 40.

It was at 40 that life for Doherty began in the larger sense, for in 1910 he launched Cities Service. Under his guidance, it flourished into an enterprise of international dimensions. By 1929 its assets in utilities and oil holdings totaled more than a billion dollars.

When minority stockholders brought suit for an accounting of $100,000,000, the litigation was stemmed by Doherty's offer to settle for $1,250,000—an offer he penned from his hospital bed.

The utilities magnate reached out into other fields. The Miami

Finns' Staunch Stand Buoys Courage of Worried Balkans

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(AP Foreign Affairs Writer)

The audacious invasion of Russia by the fighting Finns, who are thrusting boldly eastward in an effort to cut the Leningrad-Murmansk railway upon which the Communists largely depend to move supplies to the frozen battle-zone of the Arctic coast, must rank among the epics of warfare.

Still this is merely an echo of daring deeds of the past, for these hardy folk of "the land of a thousand lakes" have been making red-blood history for 12 centuries—maybe more as the crow of time flies. And history is in a way repeating itself, for often in the past, as now, they have taken up arms to defend the thin soil which they have had to till with so much labor but which they love the more for that. Again, too, the Russians are involved.

The world little thought when the Communists invaded Finland on Nov. 30 that the tiny republic's army of some 190,000 combat troops could withstand the military avalanche let loose by Russia. Yet almost four weeks have passed, and the pugnacious Finns not only are still standing up to their huge enemy, but have been winning their war thus far.

HUNDREDS DIE IN TURKEY AS QUAKE STRIKES

Major Catastrophe Reported by Officials as Story of Temblor Comes in.

FOUR SHOCKS ARE FELT

Whole Villages Along Turkish Black Sea Coast Destroyed by Severe Tremors.

(By Associated Press)

ANKARA—Hundreds were reported killed and whole villages destroyed in an earthquake which shook northern Anatolia early today.

Four shocks were felt in Ankara between 2 a. m. and 5 a. m. today (between 7 p. m. and 10 p. m. EST Tuesday).

Accurate information of the damage caused was not immediately available because communications were disrupted.

Officials by late afternoon said, however, that reports indicated a major catastrophe.

Along Sea Coast.

The quake's center apparently was along the Black sea coast of Turkey in Asia.

Heavy damage was reported at Ordu, Samsun, Tokat, Amasia, Sivas and Yozgad.

Thousands were reported to have abandoned towns for the fields, fearing additional shocks.

The government and relief agencies rushed aid to the affected area, which is from 100 to 250 miles east and northeast of Ankara.

Lingafelter, secretary of the water, sewer and garbage departments; Mrs. Mary Diebler, secretary in the same departments; Miss Mary Jane Bellore, bookkeeper "B"; Charles Anglin and Joseph Zeigler, bookkeepers "A", Alfred Lommatsch, meter reader. MARCH TO POLLS

100,000 Expected to Vote on Cleveland Relief Levy.

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Election officials predicted a vote of 100,000 today on a 3.4-mill welfare levy for Cuyahoga county, Ohio's relief-crisis center.

The county's voting strength is approximately 400,000.

The proposed levy is designed to finance over a two-year span the care of some 40,000 indigent persons. Requiring 65 per cent approval for passage, it would help raise the estimated $7,000,000 needed annually for the services.

County commissioners have pledged not to levy more than an average of 2.98 mills of the tax during 1940 and 1941.

The city's total of 65,000 direct relief clients does not include persons assisted through the county welfare levy.

SQUIRE QUITS BANKING POST

Hold-Over Appointee of Davey Hands Resignation to Bricker Effective Dec. 31.

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS — State Banking Superintendent Samuel H. Squire announced today that he has submitted his resignation to Governor Bricker, effective Dec. 31.

Squire, whose home is in Elyria, was a hold-over appointee of former Gov. Martin L. Davey. He did not reveal his plans for the future and offered no comment beyond the bare announcement of his resignation.

The resignation of the banking superintendent will leave only one Davey appointee in the cabinet of Governor Bricker — State Education Director E. N. Dietrich of Bucyrus.

"I am leaving in a friendly spirit and have no malice toward anyone," Squire told newsmen later.

Squire has headed the state banking department since Jan. 10, 1935, when he was appointed by Davey. Previously he was president of the Lorain County Savings and Trust company. He began his banking career as a messenger for the old Elyria National Bank in 1892.

The retiring banking superintendent also is widely known in Ohio Masonic circles and is a past grand master of the state Masonic lodge.

Finn Guns Send Reds to Watery Doom in Drive

Thousands Reported Killed In One-Mile Salient at Lake Ladoga; Defenders Use Machine Guns and Artillery To Repulse Attackers.

BULLETIN

HELSINKI—(AP)—The Russian air force today struck repeatedly and vigorously at Tammerfors, vital Finnish munitions city, and other cities in a series of bombing raids. Twelve bombers appeared over Tammerfors first and dropped only a few bombs, but returned two hours later to shower at least 50 bombs on the city.

By WEBB MILLER, United Press Staff Correspondent.

FINNISH ARMY GENERAL HEADQUARTERS AT VIIPURI—Russian troops, using new methods, sought to smash through the Finnish left wing in a mass attack on frozen lakes today and make the Mannerheim defense line untenable.

The Finns had long foreseen such an attack and were prepared. Their machine guns had a clear field of fire across the lake; their field guns crashed into the ice to drown whole groups of attackers.

It was reported that the Russian casualties on the one-mile length of Lake Ladoga were mounting into the thousands.

For three weeks the inter-locking lakes had forced the Russians to attack along canalized lines. Several days of 10 and 15 degrees below zero weather had frozen the lakes sufficiently to support bodies of men.

Reports from the fighting lines were that the Russians had made no gains. The Finnish machine gunners were sweeping bullets over the ice as the shells of their field guns smashed onto it, to break up the slow moving Russian infantry formations. The weather, cold and cloudy, was of advantage to the Finns. It kept down Russian planes and promised snow.

Patrols on Skates.

The Finns have put some of their night patrols on skates, which enable them to glide silently across the ice to the Russian lines, invisible in their white cloaks, and harass the Russian troops.

Finnish officers speculated on a Moscow communique putting Russian losses at 1,823 men killed and 7,000 wounded, and Finnish losses at 2,000 killed and 10,000 wounded.

Finland is preparing in secret an unpleasant surprise for the

The volume of December holiday business this year was expected to swell this increase to well above the half million mark.

Rev. Culler, 'Grand Old Man' of Lutheran Ministry, Dies at 93

Sixty-eight years of devotion and service to the Lutheran church was ended today with the death of Rev. Jacob H. Culler, 93, native of Richland county and former Mansfield pastor, who died last night in a Springfield hospital.

Known throughout the Lutheran Synod of Ohio as the "Grand Old Man," Rev. He had been ill only a short time and had undergone an operation last week.

Although technically retired from the ministry, he had never given up his preaching and still served as guest pastor on various occasions.

Advancing Child's Culture

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

At the women's club or P. T. A., over the tea cups or bridge table, wherever several mothers are together, the conversation often drifts to the lack of wholesome entertainment for children.

But there is a change taking place slowly in these conversations. Women leaders throughout the United States are learning of the very kind of programs, in progress here and there, for which they have been pleading. Several organizations devoted to the welfare of children are now making these cultural programs available.

Because mothers have expressed a demand for finer things in entertainment for their children, many of the country's largest and best symphony orchestras are giving special concerts for young audiences. Ernest Schelling's highly-successful children's concerts by the New York Philharmonic orchestra have pointed the way for similar programs by the Cincinnati, Cleveland, Rochester, National and other well-known symphony orchestras throughout the country.

The splendid work of the Metropolitan Opera Guild in arranging special youth performances of grand opera in New York City is matched in the drama field by Junior League children's theaters in many cities. Some universities have instituted children's theaters where excellent performances of plays are given, notably Northwestern university. And in Palo Alto, California, is one of the finest children's theaters in the nation supported by municipal funds.

Schools Contribute.

For the growth of interest in these fine cultural opportunities we are grateful to contributions of the public schools. We parents can hardly realize how vast these contributions are unless we happen to have children in a school orchestra or band, or attend one of the concerts put on by high school youths.

While similar music groups are developing in the elementary grades at school, and thousands of children at school listen to good music on the air, most of them are exposed to music from the radio at home that is not best for them.

Mothers and fathers in communities where such musical advantages are offered have the satisfaction of knowing that their children's tastes will be guided to an appreciation of the best things in culture and entertainment. But not every community has the funds and facilities for a local symphony orchestra and children's theater.

Fortunately, to serve the needs of these latter communities, a non-commercial organization called Junior Programs, Inc., has been created. This organization now provides on a national scale excellent stage productions for young audiences.

It is heartening to me, as a parent, to see so many children crowding into school auditoriums, from coast to coast, to see and hear real operas put on by celebrated singers and actors in person. These new opportunities being offered to children are a real advance in the cultural development of the nation.

Solving Parent Problems.

Q. Do you think it right for a father to expect his young son not to swear when his father often swears in this son's presence?

A. No; besides, it would be a futile expectation.

Get Rid Of Forehead Lines

By MME. QUI VIVE

There's no particular reason why eyebrows should be jumping up and down all the time. They are not in need of exercise, as some animated young ladies may fancy. They lift them to express surprise. That puts gullies across the forehead; once they are there it's difficult to get rid of them. Women pull those pretty lamberquins together to appear stern and a couple of frown lines dig in. A fine kettle of beauty fish!

If a woman can make her eyebrows behave properly, she will have a forehead as smooth as ice all her life. Wrinkles that appear there are self-inflicted, which seems a pity. There are enough beauty griefs slapped upon us by fate without our putting in our oars and helping along the devastating business.

Eyebrows were not meant to have active lives. They were put there for several purposes—to catch perspiration that forms on the forehead, to act as dust catchers and, above all else, to be charmingly decorative. Why tease and torment them? Why keep them on the move?

With the swept back coiffure forehead defects are out in the open for all to behold. Even bangs won't hide frown lines, so let's get after the furrows and let them be gone.

* * *

Unless one cuts out the facial gymnastics, nothing will help. Keep the countenance serene though you boil inside with raging emotions; you can't afford to turn your only face into a road map.

Every night, after washing the skin surface thoroughly with warm water and a bland soap, rinse with warm water and dry with smart pats of the towel. You are going to use a nourishing cream, and it is desirable that the flesh should be glowing. It is no time for a cold rinsing.

Purchase a heavy message cream, one of such consistency that it will not permit the fingers to slip and slide. Spread it on with an upward motion of flattened fingers, starting at the collar bones. Yes, dear, collar bones are a long way from the forehead, but you're to make a thorough job of this rejuvenating treatment.

* * *

Palm upward to the chin, to temples, over the cheeks. Spread a heavy film on the forehead.

For frown lines place the thumb at the lower end, first finger at the upper point. Keep the finger stationary, iron upward with the thumb. That treatment lifts the flesh from its grooves.

For crosslines place the ends of the four fingers of each hand in the center of the forehead. When one group sweeps upward, the other group goes down, and all the time they are skipping across the forehead from temple to temple. Finish the treatment with an ice friction.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"I've been muddling over that," I told Lillian in answer to her query. "There's only one solution that I can see, and telling about it involves breaking another confidence, Mary's this time. However, I'm very sure that Mary would wish me to tell you about it, so 'give me your ears'."

"They're all unpinned and wide open," she told me, and, our breakfast finished, I related what Mary had told me of the sudden "yen" for her society which Olina had been manifesting.

"Of course, it's easy to see what she's up to, the devil!" Lillian commented.

"Decidedly," I returned, "and it's also the way Mary figures it. She says that Noel and she have very little time together, so completely does Olina monopolize her."

Lillian spoke with slow thoughtfulness as if she were charting a course.

"But you ought to be able to twist this particular bit of cattishness to your advantage this morning," she said.

"That's what I'm planning," I said. "I'm going to awaken Mary and have her make some excuse to get Olina outside for a game of tennis or something. That will also solve the problem of awakening Olga, and as soon as Mary and Olina are safely outside, I'll talk to Olga, and—"

"And Gosh! how you dread it!" she finished, and I nodded miserably.

By the time I reached the room occupied by Mary and Noel, I had lost much of my pessimism about my planned campaign to lead Queen Olga to accept Philip Veritzen's wooing.

I knocked softly, and the door opened almost immediately, framing Mary, lovely in a scarlet negligee with her bare feet thrust into mules of a matching color. She put her finger on her lips and slipped past me into the hall, closing the door noiselessly after her.

"Poor dear!" she said, with a backward nod toward the room where her husband lay asleep. "He was up till all hours with a toothache, and since it subsided he's been as completely out as if he'd been given a dose of knock-out drops. I don't think Gabriel's trumpet would waken him, but I'm not taking any chances. He does need the rest so much."

"I'm very glad he's asleep," I told her, "for I need your aid sorely."

"Oh! is anybody ill?" she asked with quick alarm.

"No, everything is all right," I assured her. "But I need you nevertheless. How soon can you dress and come to my room?"

"I pride myself on being a 'quick change'," she said. I'll be along in five minutes."

"I'll be waiting for you," I told her, and went back to Lillian.

"Mary will be here in five minutes," I said.

"Have you told her what you want of her?" she countered.

"Not yet."

"Then this is my signal to fly the coop," she said, rising. "If you want me, I'll be on the balcony, drinking in the autumn air."

She went out of the door and, sinking into the nearest chair, I went over what I wanted to say to Mary, for I did not want to tell her too much. And then I heard her light rap on the door.

Here are some swell stuffings for that fowl, be it turkey, goose, duck or chicken.

The first recipe is delicious for stuffed peppers and veal birds as well as for chicken. It is made with one-half pound mushrooms, two tablespoons minced onion, six tablespoons butter, one and one-half cups boiled rice, salt, pepper, poultry seasoning and two beaten eggs. For a real treat, select broilers about two pounds in weight and have them split for broiling. Lay skin side down, bursh cavity side with butter and sprinkle light with salt. Broil about 15 minutes. Make the stuffing by sauteing the mushrooms and onion in butter. Add the cooked rice and seasonings and mix in the beaten eggs. Pack into the body cavities of the halved broilers. Turn over carefully and broil, skin side up, for 20 to 25 minutes. Baste frequently with butter and pan drippings. Serve very hot. Four servings.

Prune and Apple.

Prune and Apple Stuffing will give a delicate flavor to goose or duck. It is made with three cups stale bread crumbs, one-fourth cup melted fat, teaspoon salt, one cup apples, pared and cut into small pieces and parboiled with a little sugar, one-fourth teaspoon of pepper, one-half cup cooked, stoned prunes, cut into little pieces; and one-half cup pecans or chestnuts, cut into little pieces. Moisten bread slightly with boiling water. Add all ingredients, stuff bird and roast as usual.

For a grand dressing for turkey, allow one cup of dressing to each pound gobbler. It's better to have too much than not enough. If there's some left over, put in the roasting pan where it will be basted with the juices and fat of the turkey, and add a piquant "extra" to the turkey platter. Remove crusts from one and one-half pound loaf of stale bread and cut bread into one-inch cubes; put into large mixing bowl and add one-half to one pound of butter, cut into three-fourths inch dice. Drain one two-ounce can of button mushrooms from liquid, brown slowly in one tablespoon of butter and add to bread and butter in mixing bowl. Add one-fourth teaspoon white pepper, one-fourth cup minced onion and teaspoon salt. Toss all together, using two forks or hands, until ingredients are well blended. Sufficient for 12- to 16-lb. bird.

Dessert Sauces.

Let's skip the rest of the meal and jump to some swell sauces to glorify those frozen desserts so popular at holiday time. Butterscotch Sauce is made with one and one-half cups brown sugar, two-thirds cup white corn syrup, one-half cup water, one small can evaporated milk (two-thirds cup). Boil sugar, syrup and water to soft ball stage (237 degrees F.). Cool. Stir in the milk. Yield: two cups.

Chocolate Sauce is made with one-half cup white corn syrup, one cup sugar, one-fourth cup water, three squares bitter chocolate (chopped), teaspoon vanilla and cup evaporated milk. Boil syrup, sugar and water to soft ball syrup, (235 degrees F.). Remove from fire and add chocolate. When chocolate is melted, stir in vanilla and milk. Yield: two and one-half cups or 10 servings.

For a toothsome variation, omit chocolate and vanilla in foregoing chocolate sauce. After cooking syrup, sugar and water to soft ball stage, remove from fire and add one-half cup (two ounces) crushed peppermint stick candy. Stir until melted and add milk Ten servings.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

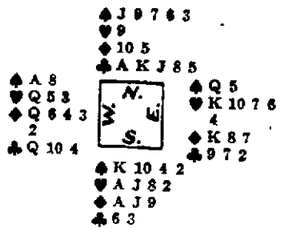
"The Authority on Authorities"

LENGTH IS THE FACTOR

IF YOU hold two suits which you intend to bid, their length should determine which is called first and not the relative honor strength. As between two five-carders the higher ranking is nearly always the preferred choice by veteran campaigners, even though it is topped by a small card and the latter one by great power.



(Dealer: North. Both sides vulnerable.)

Violation of basic principles by both North and South on this deal gave the side a bottom score in a duplicate tournament. South, who should have opened with 1-Spade, because the two major suits were of equal length, called 1-Heart instead.

When North now bid 2-Clubs in place of 2-Spades that should have been called as a response, South was on the-spot. Being vulnerable, he was afraid to try 2-No Trumps if there happened to be weakness on the part of his partner, who had passed as dealer. He therefore let the 2-Clubs stand.

If either North or South had bid spades at the first opportunity, the side would have reached a game and made it without difficulty.

Senate Subway Cleaned, Next Session Near

Busy as bees are these workmen tidying up the subway which runs from the senate office building in Washington to the capitol. Congress reconvenes Wednesday, Jan. 3. The subway whisks the dignified solons to and from the capitol thus saving considerable senatorial shoe leather.

CAFE'S COSTLY

Wealthy Briton Gives Aid to Soldiers on Leave.

LONDON—(U P)—A new West End bottle party "king" and a new type party where soldiers on leave can have a good time without being fleeced is being operated.

Wealthy Stanley Hailwood, a blunt little Lancashire man from Manchester, with a farm at Oxford, the new "king" has no need to make his bottle party a paying stunt. He has wealth to spare. So he can afford to see there is no sharp practice at his West End place.

A few months ago someone asked him to put up $14,000 for the Paradise Club. He gave a check and left it at that. But on the outbreak of war he decided to take an active interest and see that it was operated under decent conditions. "No nude shows and carryings-on Just good fun and fair treatment for all the lads on leave."

It costs him $1,500 a week. But it's worth it. For he can nurse his secret ambition and have his own songs that he has composed sung in public. Not only that. It is paying. It is so popular that people are being turned away.

Brings Tricks Here

Alexander, The Great, will brings new tricks in magic to the Madison theater Saturday when he appears there with the George Whiteman Follies, a stage show

STATIONS GUARD FOREST WEALTH

HARTFORD, Conn.—(UP)—Five especially constructed stations in selected districts of the state warn of the dangers of forest fires in Connecticut and provide a daily schedule of the seriousness of conditions.

The stations record the inflammability of the forest floor, and the speed and direction of the wind.

Conditions are rated in five classes. Reports of class one indicate that there is suitable moisture in the forests and permit for fires may be issued without danger.

Should a class five condition be reported, indicating the most hazardous situation, fire fighting crews, totaling approximately 11,000 men, are notified to be prepared for immediate action.

The stations are operated in conjunction with the U. S. Forest Service

THEATERS

MOTION PICTURE HERALD named the ten biggest box office stars in its Dec. 22 issue and there were several upsets—such as Shirley Temple being replaced by Mickey Rooney, and Bette Davis coming from nowhere up to sixth place—but just as interesting is the list of 15 "honor mentions." They are the next 15 in line after the Big Ten, who have definite, year-round drawing power. They are, in their order of drawing power: Bing Crosby, Deanna Durbin, Jane Withers, Robert Taylor, Wallace Beery, Myrna Loy, Bob Burns, Gary Cooper, Jeanette MacDonald, Don Ameche, Ginger Rogers, Henry Fonda, Paul Muni, Irene Dunne and Cary Grant. One of the most amazing revelations is that Clark Gable held fourth place in the Big Ten, despite the fact that "Gone With the Wind," just released, kept him out of other pictures for more than a year.

* * *

"Reno" at Madison.

Reno, the divorce capital, is shown in its mining camp days of the early 1900's, exciting, colorful, gusty, with a young attorney trying to make a living by advertising it as the easiest place in America to obtain a divorce, in the picture "Reno," which opens at the Madison today. Richard Dix is the gambling hall proprietor who tells the town's history. Gail Patrick, Anita Louise and Paul Cavanagh in the cast. The second film, which runs through Friday, is "Nick Carter, Master Detective."

* * *

"Wives" Held Over.

"Four Wives," with the three Lane sisters, Gale Page and enough attractive men to go around for husbands for all of the girls, will be held over through Friday at the Ohio theater. The sequel to "Four Daughters" has all of the human interest of that first picture, with two of the girls married and two others romancing down the aisle to the tune of the Wedding March.

* * *

A Singing Fighter.

"Kid Nightingale," which the Ritz offers for three days, starting tomorrow, is the story of a prizefighter who could warble as well as he could box. John Payne and Jane Wyman, two of the younger players, have the leading roles. Gene Autry, with Smiley Burnette, in "Rovin' Tumbleweeds," is the other feature. Mary Carlisle is a blond heroine in the western romance.

* * *

Variety at Park.

The movie fare at the Park today and tomorrow is made up of two widely contrasting subjects. There is Freddie Bartholomew in the film version of "Little Lord Fauntleroy" and there is Boris Karloff, "horror" actor" in "Black Room Mystery." The first one deals with a model boy and the second one is one of Karloff's best nerve shockers. The "Country Store" as operated by Fat Sanders, is booked for an added attraction Thursday night.

* * *

DeMille Epic at Majestic.

Cecil B. DeMille turned his talents for spectacular action to telling the story, in pictures and dialogue, of the building of the first transcontinental railroad, in "Union Pacific." He interprets the story through the lives of several major characters—which are played by Joel McCrea, Barbara Stanwyck, Brian Donlevy, Akim Tamiroff and Lynne Overman. "Cowboy Quarterback" is a comedy with the lively Marie Wilson and Bert Wheeler.

Cites Progress of Industrial Safety In Past 25 Years

Progress in industrial safety through a quarter of a century was the subject of a talk given by Ben Goodenough at Tuesday's meeting of the Rotary club, held at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

Goodenough, who is director of safety in the industrial relations department of the Mansfield plant of Westinghouse, told of the first steps toward increasing industrial safety, taken in 1912 and of the later organization of the National Safety Council, which has since devoted much attention to study of causes of factory accidents and encouraging installation of safety devices.

With the humanitarian motive as highest among reasons for guarding against industrial accidents, reference was also made to the high costs of such accidents and to the reduction in production efficiency.

Study of ways in which factory accidents can be still further reduced revolve around three factors, Goodenough explained—materials, machinery and men, with the human element most difficult to correct except through continuance of education in carefulness.

Robert C. Remy was program chairman of the meeting. David C. Baer, president of the Bucyrus Rotary club, was a guest.

CAN'T GET PAY

CHEYENNE, Wyo.—(U P)—Emmett Ekdall, state purchasing agent employe, works blithely on at a job for which he fails to collect one cent of salary. Although unforseen expenses resulted in his going without pay for more than one month, Ekdall was promised that eventually he would receive his back sallary.

HELD IN FIGHT

Two Accused of Assault After Row in Tavern.

Accused of striking Joe Kuelling of Springmill in the face with a bottle Friday night during a fight in a tavern at Springmill, Fess Hogg, 26, of 117½ South Franklin avenue, was held in the county jail today on a charge of assault and battery.

Cited on the same charge was William Shepherd, 23, of 120 North Mulberry street, who provided $500 bond and was released. Shepherd is said to have been involved in the same altercation.

Deputy sheriffs who arrested Shepherd and Hogg said Kuelling is in General hospital for treatment. The cases will be heard when he is able to appear as a witness, deputies said.

As long ago as the 12th century, monks were using linseed oil in the manufacture of varnish.

Charges NLRB Pressed Examiner to Rule for Unions

DIES PROBERS PUT 'CASE' IN HOUSE RECORD

Evidence Compiled Indicating Examiner Was Reprimanded and Lost Job.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Charges that a trial examiner for the National Labor Relations board was severely reprimanded because a case "did not unfold like a book to sustain a labor union's position" were disclosed today in records of the house investigating committee.

The same records show that the examiner, Harlow Hurley, was dropped from the board's payroll after he revealed that he had been instructed in another case to exclude testimony that an employe bringing a complaint was a Communist.

These records were not read at the committee hearings which ended last week, but they were introduced as official exhibits and today they had been correlated by the staff of committee workers. Hurley, it is expected, will be called to support the charges when the committee reconvenes Jan. 5.

The first indication Hurley had, according to the documents, that he was out of the board's good graces came when he wired his friend, Philip G. Phillips, the board's regional director in Cincinnati. In this wire, Dated Aug. 26, 1938, he said:

"Getting the hook. Appreciate anything you do. Matter serious."

This was followed by a letter in which Hurley wrote as follows:

"Heard the American Oil company and Oil Workers union (CIO) at Baltimore in April. Bet John Lewis would raise hell about this case. There was a strike and the CIO put up money for same, still I get hell because the case does not unfold like a book to sustain the union's position."

'I Am Cashed Out.'

The letter then complained that Hurley had been given no opportunity to defend himself of the charges, adding:

"Stalin makes them confess, but with no charges, no hearing. I am cashed out."

The records show, however, that Hurley stayed on the payroll although being assigned only unimportant cases. Then came the final disposition of the Cincinnati Milling company's case in which, during December of 1937, Phillips, acting for the board, had instructed Hurley to exclude testimony about an employe's Communist activities.

When the company, which had lost the case, found out about this it demanded the decision be set aside. Phillips testified at the hearings that he had made a mistake in this case and said the decision finally was set aside early this year.

Denies State Will End Redemption of Sales Tax Stamps

Answering rumors that the state planned to end redemption of sales tax stamps, County Treasurer John E. Kolb said today the plan definitely would be continued in its present form.

Quoting a statement issued by State Treasurer Don Ebright Kolb said; "Sales tax stamps will continue to have a cash value and may be redeemed in the regular way in amounts of $100 or more."

Kolb said the state official issued the statement to dispell widely circulated rumors of the plan's cancellation.

"Many charitable, civic and fraternal organizations have saved the stamps and turned them in to the state treasury," Ebright said in the statement. Any increase in sales tax receipts is partially due to their efforts.

"The rumor is entirely unfounded that any change or curtailment of the plan is contemplated."

Kolb explained the stamps have a cash value of three per cent of their face value but must be redeemed in blocks of $100.

They, of course, insist it'll be a Clemson victory.

County Commissioner Guy Stewart was as griefstricken today as he would be if he had lost his best friend. His prize hunting dog, "Queen," died yesterday and to him the animal's death was "just like losing a good friend." Possessing remarkable stamina in the field, the dog had won a number of awards and was considered one of the best in this section of Ohio. "I wouldn't have taken $100 for her," Stewart commented.

Those chunks of wood in the park fountain were not put there by pranksters. Parks officials placed them in the water, they said, to keep the cement fountain bowl from breaking when the water freezes and to let air through to the fish under the ice. The wood blocks are expected to serve as shock absorbers in the ice, providing for expansion. So far there has been no ice on the water and the goldfish have it all to themselves.

SCIENCE STUDIES LOVE LIFE OF CHAMELEONS FOR EVOLUTION TIP

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—In the love life of Florida chameleons one of the first confirmations of Darwin's theory of the influence of sex on evolution has been found.

This was reported today to the American Association for the Advancement of Science by Dr. G. K. Noble of the American museum of natural history, New York. Darwin said evolution had two motors, natural selections and sexual selection.

The first, better known as Survival of the Fittest, has long been accepted. But Dr. Noble said thousands of naturalists have studied sexual selection among animals without finding the confirmation.

These Florida chameleons, he said, are surprising. The males know each female personally, and know other males personally too. They fight the other males.

A chameleon stakes out some ground, which becomes his own, unless another male wants to fight him for it. Then he waits for females to enter the preserve. They do, usually in numbers, the females then fight among themselves to see which one is to be boss lady chameleon.

If, said Dr. Noble, the fighting is severe, it ends with only one female remaining. In that case the two chameleons make a truly monagamous pair.

One result is that the female selects the most attractive male and passes on his traits to future generations of males, thus bringing Darwin's rule into play.

This selection, Dr. Noble said, has been demonstrated experimentally only twice before on animals, one being a species of fish and the other love birds. Chameleons belong to the reptile family.

REPORT BUDGET ESTIMATE WILL BE 3RD HIGHEST

Capital Hears Spending Curb and New Tax Assessments Under Consideration.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt was believed today to be budgeting for a federal treasury income of $6,000,000,000 or more for the next fiscal year in expectation of continued business improvement.

Tax revenue at the $6,000,000,000 level would be the third largest in treasury experience, exceeded only by the fiscal years 1920 and 1938.

The indicated upward trend in federal income is accompanied by reports of budget-paring and consideration of new tax levies at the White House.

Secretary of Commerce Harry L. Hopkins estimates that national income during the 1939 calendar year aggregated $68,500,000,000, an increase of $4,500,000,000 over the national income last year. Even half that improvement next year would raise the national income figure—the sum representing the whole nation's productive earnings —to something over $70,000,000,000 for the 1940 calendar year.

Mr. Roosevelt roughly estimated in his last budget message that existing tax rates would obtain $6,000,000,000 for the treasury when national income reached $70,000,000,0000. That income would be provided from these sources:

Source	Amount in Millions
Corporate and Individual income taxes	2,500
Misc. Internal revenue	2,200
Customs	400
Misc. Receipts	200
Payroll taxes	700

In addition to income expectable from existing tax rates, Mr. Roosevelt is represented as considering special national defense taxation to raise $500,000,000. Increases in middle bracket individual income tax rates, estate taxes and manufacturer's excise taxes have been suggested as a likely source.

EXAM DATES SET

Tests for Liquor Store Jobs to Be Held Here Feb. 8-9.

Examinations for approximately 500 positions in state liquor stores will be conducted Feb. 8 and 9 in Mansfield and 10 other major Ohio cities by the Civil Service commission, Miss Gertrude Jones, chairman, said today.

Jobs for which eligible lists will be set up include liquor store managers, cashiers and clerks. The examinations will be the first held for the principal jobs in state operated liquor stores since 1934 when about 500 of the 1,000 employes were appointed.

About 15,000 persons will take the examination, the civil service chairman estimated. Each applicant will be required to pay a fee of $1 for every test he takes Such receipts must be turned over to the state general fund by the commission.

Eligible lists will be arranged by counties and appointments will be made only from those eligibles who are residents from those counties in which the appointments are made. Miss Jones explained.

WISE FUNERAL THURSDAY

LOUDONVILLE—Funeral services for Mrs. Belle Wise, 71, who died at Mansfield General hospital Tuesday, will be held at 2 p. m. Thursday at the Swank funeral home, with Rev. J. H. Kuhlman in charge. Burial will be in Loudonville cemetery.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Another Version of That Colorful Story of West And a Mysterious Slaying

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK — Last summer the editor of the Lamar Democrat of Lamar, Mo., dug deep into the old files of that outspoken rural journal and recalled a series of historic killings, two of them by lynching, which momentarily disturbed the never-peaceful life of a community whose routine news, even to this day, contains a run of police matter sufficient for a much bigger town.

A spinster, Miss Josie Norris, had died at the age of 86 and had been laid away after non-religious services at which Mrs. Helen Selvey, "Lamar's sweet singer and generous helper at funerals," sang Evening Brings Us Home, with Mrs. Dimple Moore Haddock at the piano.

* * *

This event prompted the editor to recall from the files that Miss Josie had been the daughter of a distinguished local pioneer, Col. David Norris, late of the Confederate army; that Col. Norris had been foully assassinated in 1884 by a shot in the back in an encounter with a neighbor Francis Hieronymus, and one William Dixon, and that Hieronymus was shot dead by a person unknown that very night as he sat by the east window of the old jail.

Dixon got away but was caught, and in his trial was acquitted, but his lawyer realized that he was in danger, and therefore drove him a two-days' journey by buggy, into Arkansas, where, nevertheless, he, too, was shot and killed in a schoolhouse where he was hiding.

* * *

The Lamar Democrat of that time said the killing of Col. Norris was "the most cowardly and atrocious murder that has ever disgraced our county," but Miss Alta Hieronymus of Talega, Ky., a grandniece of Francis Hieronymus, now disputes this and other aspects of the Democrat's version of a tragedy of 65 years ago, insisting that Francis Hieronymus was a heroic soldier of the Union army, and, for that reason, the victim of the prejudice and hatred in a borderland dominated by demobilized soldiers of the Confederacy.

"Sergeant Francis Hieronymus of D company, Eighth Kentucky regiment, was a brave and adventurous but quiet and cautious man," Miss Hieronymus writes, citing from the History of Kentucky Regiments of the Civil War, by Capt. T. J. Wright. He enlisted twice—first for three years and again in the fourth Kentucky mounted infantry, in January, 1864, for a term which may be supposed to have occupied him until the end of the war.

* * *

"At a reunion of old soldiers in Lexington," Miss Hieronymus writes, "My father got to talking with one of the old men, and the old gentleman said, 'I owe my life to Francis Hieronymous. In the thick of the battle of Lookout mountain he rushed in, put me on his shoulder and carried me to safety when I was wounded.'

"After Francis Hieronymus returned from the war he bought a farm in the Ozark region of Missouri, and was a dealer in stock, taking cattle into the new West. He wrote to his brother that he was having trouble with 'the rebels,' as he called them. Later his brother heard that he had been killed, and responsible people in the community wrote him that Francis and his partner, Dixon, were driving cattle when they met their neighbor Col. Norris, who attacked them. Dixon shot the colonel in self-defense. Francis Hieronymus was arrested, but Dixon got away. That same night Hieronymus was killed in jail. Dixon was returned. He acknowledged the shooting, but was acquitted and was armed by the law for self-protection, but was killed on his way out of the country. We supposed the same dare-devil sweetheart of Miss Josie Norris killed both Hieronymus and Dixon."

This sweetheart was Jim Ward, an adventurous Confederate cavalryman, who drifted to Mexico and fought for the Emperor Maximilian, but returned to Lamar and paid court to the beautiful and high-spirited Josie. She would not have him, however, and he died a bachelor in Mena, Ark., in 1897.

There is a gambling device used much at county fairs and church bazaars known as the Hieronymus wheel, and Miss Hieronymus writes that, although her family can trace their history straight back to St. Jerome—and the name stands for christianity and education—it is possible that there have been eminent sinners among them, for the wheel was invented by a famous gambler of the same name who was mentioned in Edna Ferber's Show Boat. Miss Hieronymus says further: "I noticed recenetly that a race horse had this name, which, I suppose, signifies he was unbeatable."

This information is offered to the Lamar Democrat for what it may be worth in rounding out the story of a tragic incident in local history. The contemporary account cited by the editor last summer seems to take much for granted.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Turkey time. Hm-m-m-m!

All the time is turkey time in Hollywood—time to evade turkeys.

Twice a year—Thanksgiving and Christmas—the turkey is a festive bird, object of admiration and appetite.

All other days, in Hollywood, the "turkey" is a goblin, a monster, a nightmare. It's a movie that didn't pan out. It's a movie with a smell. It's a mistake.

Just to be different, at this season when everyone is mellowly dispensing kudos for the screen's 1939 "bests," let me dispense a potion of ground glass, arsenic and sneeze powder to a few movie Turkeys of the Year.

In fairness — before proceeding — it must be remembered that what is one man's Turkey may be a movie audience's Pheasant on Toast, and vice versa. In fact, some of my own pet Turkeys have atoned for all—in the eyes of their producers—by proving profitable.

Here goes, then.

* * *

Broadway Serenade, Jeanette MacDonald's worst picture. The Sun Never Sets, in which over-ripe ham was under-baked. On Your Toes, despite the lovely Zorina. Zaza, a borer from within — and without, too, even with Colbert. Winter Carnival, in which Oomph went Boom. Rio, which was almost bad enough to be funny. The Flying Irishman, for which I was as embarrassed as its hero Corrigan in the picture. Allegheny Uprising, which dulled up American history —in itself an amazing feat.

Any other nominations, please?

And now to face the clean bright air of the Christmas season and serve up some red apples and posies, let us contemplate the year's Brighter Side.

This will be a novel list of Bests in two respects. First, it is not limited to ten films. Second, it is compiled from memory (as was the Turkey list) without reference to a complete index of 1939 releases. This, naturally, lays me wide open to omitting some choice item on which, when it was current, I did a wordy nip-up, but that's fair too. If you don't remember them—!

* * *

The best: Ninotchka, Pygmalion, Gone With the Wind, Mr. Smith Goes to Washington, Wuthering Heights, Stagecoach (from the same Walter Wanger who produced Winter Carnival), Dark Victory, Goodbye Mr. Chips, Elizabeth and Essex, The Beachcomber, Destry Rides Again, Full Confession, Bachelor Mother, Nurse Edith Cavell, We Are Not Alone, and both the Deanna Durbin films.

Exceptional, or just Darned Good Pictures, or just Good Fun: Jesse James, Gunga Din, Love Affair, Drums Along the Mohawk, Young Mr. Lincoln, Union Pacific, Man of Conquest, Midnight, Five Came Back, The Women, The Roaring Twenties, The Under-Pup, Golden Boy, The Wizard of Oz, The Great Man Votes, The Great Victor Herbert, any Hardy Family picture.

Best of the year? I'm freshly groggy from four overwhelming hours of "Gone With the Wind," but I still think fondly of "Mr. Smith" and "Ninotchka" and "Stagecoach."

IN THE RUHL BOOK

BY OSCAR RUHL
News-Journal Sports Editor

ALTHOUGH the championship picture in bowling is not as cluttered as it is in wrestling, the kegling title can be claimed by at least three bowlers.

Ned Day of Milwaukee is hailed as the title-holder at present, but there are two other bowlers who have never been defeated as holder of that crown.'

Joe Falcaro of New York won the title several years ago, but was forced to forfeit it when his exhibition appearances made it impossible for him to defend it.

An elimination tournament produced Hank Marino of Milwaukee as his successor. Last year another elimination was held to select an opponent for Marino. The survivor was Day, who by a strange quirk of fate was a teammate of Marino on the famous Heil Products team.

When time came for a match between Marino and Day, the former decided he did not want to bowl against his teammate and withdrew. Day thus donned the championship robes.

* * *

None of these three may be the No. 1 bowler in the country as each area has its personal nomination, but Falcaro, Marino and Day are quite capable mineralite wielders.

* * *

Benkovic Rivals Day, Marino In Milwaukee.

NEW YORK boasts of another fine pin buster in Tony Sperando, Milwaukee has another rival for Day and Marino in Frank Benkovic, Philadelphia aces are Bill Knox, first man to bowl a 300 game in the A. B. C.; Frank Susick and Al Novak, Syracuse boasts Bill Shaul and San Francisco considers Ora Mayer as a national title contender.

Then there's Brooklyn's Andy Varipapa, who must be regarded as somewhat of a bowler, despite the fact that he has gained most of his recognition through exhibition scores.

Chicago claims that Adolph Carlson is the best kegler in the nation, while Joe Scribner, who, incidentally, lost the title to Falcaro, and Joe Crimmens are listed among Detroit's big guns

With Marino definitely uninterested in the championship, a match between Falcaro and Day is being talked up. Joe has suggested a series of eight matches, 20 games to a match, rolled in eight cities. But there is little chance of this match materializing.

The only way for Falcaro to meet Day is to enter and win the qualifying trials that will be staged in Toledo next month to determine a rival for the champion.

The Toledo matches, by the way, should be worth seein'.

Few Perfect Records Produced In Football.

ALMOST EVERY season produces a few teams that manage to slip through along campaign without being tied or beaten, but only six teams in the history of modern football have been able to keep their goal line uncrossed in their victory parade.

No better than a 600 to 1 shot, Tennessee came through unbeaten, untied and unscored on this year.

The Volunteers had some narrow shaves, but they had the strength to preserve their amazing defensive record in the "clutch." Whether they can protect this record in the Rose Bowl has to be seen.

Just a year ago, Wallace Wade built a marvelous defensive machine at Duke. The Blue Devils whipped nine foes and scored 114 points without giving up a point. Then they went to the Rose Bowl and lost to Southern California, 7 to 3.

Since modern football came in with the development of the forward pass around 1912, only Texas A. & M., Colgate, DePauw, Duke and Tennessee have completed perfect campaigns.

Meeting a championship quintet on the court, apparently, doesn't bother the First Congregational basketeers.

Tied with the titleholders for first place going into last night's circuit tussels, the Congregational combine took possession of the top berth in the Y. M. C. A. Church Class B league by registering an impressive 37 to 26 victory over the heretofore unbeaten Presbyterian club at the 'Y'.

* * *

The defending champion's setback left them in a four-way tie for the runner-up spot.

* * *

First Lutheran, which handed the Mayflower team its third defeat by a 41 to 17 count, the Park Avenue Baptist cagers, who beat First Methodist, 27 to 14, and South Main Evangelical, which stopped the Catholic Foresters, 25 to 16, share second place with First Presbyterian.

Led by Scott, who dumped in 12 points, the Congregational players hopped into the lead in the opening quarter and successfully halted every Presbyterian threat.

* * *

Congregational was ahead, 12-8, in the first period, 18-11, at the half, and 29 to 16 as the third quarter ended. Harmon added 10 points to the winners' total. Wagner was high for the losers with 10 markers.

* * *

The only club that had to rally to win was the Baptist outfit. After securing a 6-2 advantage in the initial frame, and a 10-7 lead at the half, First Methodist staged a rally to take a 12-11 lead, going into the last period. The Baptists, however, outscored their rivals, 16-2, in the final period to emerge with the victory.

Trojans Crack L. I. U. Streak

Beat Blackbirds, 57-49, to End 42-Game String.

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—The University of Southern California boasted its old golden era in sports today.

The Trojans' touring basketball team added luster to an already formidable 1939 athletic record, which has a U. S. C. football team in the Rose Bowl, by cracking Long Island university's 42-game winning streak, 57-49, in the feature game of a collegiate doublebill at Madison Square Garden last night.

The University of Texas walloped Manhattan university, 54-32, in the opening game.

* * *

A record crowd—18,425 fans—watched the fast, aggressive, well conditioned Trojan quintet outplay the Blackbirds, who had built up the second longest winning streak in local history. Stanford snapped a Long Island winning streak at 43 games two years ago.

* * *

Southpaw Ralph Vaughn, who broke the Pacific Coast conference scoring record last year by rolling up 36 points against the University of California, scored 19 points on nine field goals and one free toss to lead the westerners' attack.

The game was closely fought almost all the way, the score being tied seven times and the lead changing hands 16 times. In the last 14 minutes the Trojans' reserves began to set a pace that was too fast for the Blackbirds.

LOUDONVILLE HIGH HOST TO CLEARVIEW FRIDAY

U.S.C. Favored To Take Vols In Rose Bowl

Missouri, Clemson, Catholic U. and Texas Aggies Loom as Probable Winners.

By LAWTON CARVER

NEW YORK — (INS) — With betting odds fluctuating and even a switch in favorites likely among the wagerers in some instances before the battles begin here are our revised and brought-up-date selections—subject to further change—for the various bowl football games New Year's day:

* * *

ROSE BOWL, Pasadena — Southern California, tough and powerful, over Tennessee, tough and powerful but hit by injuries to Halfback Cafego and Guard Suffridge (both All-Americans).

* * *

SUGAR BOWL, New Orleans—Texas A. and M., powered by Fullback Kimbrough, over Tulane, which probably will make it extremely close.

ORANGE BOWL, Miami—Missouri and Quarterback Christman over Georgia Tech and its light, but agile and deft backfield.

COTTON BOWL, Dallas—Clemson, one of the South's better teams, over Boston college, one of the East's better teams, with a close struggle assured.

SUN BOWL, El Paso—Catholic university, loser of only one game, over Arizona State, which may upset the dope.

* * *

The five games, by the way, figure to draw an aggregate of about 250,000 spectators, or, as Dr. Robert Maynard Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago, might point out, football arranged as a money-making spectacle a month after the season is over can justifiably be suspected of over-emphasis. . . . Not that anybody has any illusions about it.

* * *

Without wishing to rant on and on about it, we still think a good National league team, the champion Green Bay Packers, for instance, could take any two of the bowl teams on the same afternoon, with only time out for a drink of water between games. . . . Aside from that, we think Tennessee would take Southern Cal if Tennessee could muster full strength, although Tennessee's schedule was the kind that would make any reasonably good team look great.

Settlemire Mentioned On Honor Roll for 1939.

ST. LOUIS—(AP)—Two officials of Ohio minor league baseball teams were mentioned today on the Sporting News' honor roll for 1939.

Ed L. Jacobs, of the Canton Terriers of the Mid-Atlantic league, was given honorable mention among minor league executives, and Merle Settlemire, of the Lima club of the Ohio State league, was noted for managerial honors.

Battle Billed Friday

Mansfield Quint Favored on Comparison of Scores in Elyria Game.

MANSFIELD high school's cage forces returned to the practice court yesterday to launch drills for Friday's engagement with the Blue Streaks at Sandusky.

Friday's game will take the Tygers to the scene of their last two district championship triumphs, and it will serves to familiarize Coach Vern Hoffman's new edition with the specious Sandusky court where it will defend its laurels next spring.

* * *

Strength of the Sandusky team is questionable, but the Blue Streaks are usually difficult to defeat on their home court.

* * *

A score comparison of the Mansfield and Sandusky games with Elyria gives the Tygers a marked edge in Friday's meeting. However, Coach Hoffman has had previous experiences with the Sanduskians while coaching at Bellevue and refuses to take anything for granted.

Despite two defeats in the last three games for the Tygers, Hoffman believes his quintet has shown considerable improvement The Tygers lost to Canton McKinley, 41 to 40, in one of the most spectacular games involving the Mansfield team this season.

Trailing 28 to 10 at the half, the Tygers staged a thrilling comeback in the final periods to deadlock the score in the last minutes only to have the Bulldogs win on a free throw after a foul had been committed in the last second.

* * *

While beaten in two games, the bengal squad has shown great scoring possibilities, and should develope into a dangerous combination before the curtain is rung down.

* * *

Hoffman will lose Gene Rudolph by graduation at mid-season, but he has already started to groom Jack Shiplet for the post, and the youngster has shown considerable promise.

STOCK TRADING SETTLES DOWN TO SLOW PACE

Selected Industrial Shares Tilt Slightly Lower After Uneven Opening.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Selected industrial shares, after an uneven opennig, tilted slightly lower in the stock market today.

Midway between Christmas and New Year holidays, dealings settled down to a modest pace after the opening clearance of overnight orders. Offerings of foreign-owned American securities, a recent price depressant, was light. Moreover, selling of securities for tax purposes was reported smaller than usual.

Steels, motors and some rails tended fractions to about 1 lower today. Losers included U. S. Steele, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, and New York Central.

* * *

Also lower were some aviations, including Douglas and United Aircraft. Down among metals were Kennecott, American Smelting and Phelps Dodge. About steady were Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, both of which enjoyed the best fall retail sales on record. Commodities, including grains and cotton were uneven.

* * *

The weekly statement of the reporting member banks of the Federal Reserve System disclosed an increase of $34,000,000 in loans to brokers and dealers in securities in the period ended Dec. 20 but credit extended for commercial, industrial and agricultural purposes dropped around $10,000,000.

At the same time reports from banks in leading cities for the same week showed debits to individual accounts — considered a good guide in estimating actual business conditions—rose 18 per cent above the preceding week, but fell 5 per cent below the comparable 1938 period.

DOHERTY, EMPIRE BUILDER, DEAD

Aside from the arduous responsibilities of finance—three years age he listed as a director of 95 corporations and president of 87 of them—Doherty's engineering prowess won his fame in the realm of science.

The one-time chief engineer for a gas company he ultimately absorbed in his corporation network perfected a cooler system for preparing artificial gas, new distillation methods for petroleum and sundry other devices.

He pioneered too in the merchandising of household appliances by public utility companies as a means of increasing the consumption of electricity and gas. He used radio, bill-board and newspaper advertising to forward the campaign.

His projects, sweeping in character, aroused much opposition and he was a party to numerous suits. Probably the most extensive of these was a case brought by minority stockholders of Cities Service in September, 1936. It alleged that Doherty and some of his close friends had profited personally by $20,500,000 by manipulating shares of the company while their market value was sinking by $80,000,000, and demanded an accounting for these sums. This $100,000,000 suit came to trial in January, 1937, but was halted by Doherty's offer to settle for $1,250,000 provided this step was approved by a majority of the stockholders.

Doherty wrote this offer from a hospital bed in Philadelphia. It was approved by the stockholders on March 16, 1937, but when the case was taken up in court again, the approval vote was challenged on grounds of coercion. A proposal that the court move to Doherty's bedside was overruled, but a written questionnaire was submitted to the ill man and in a deposition filed June 23 he denied he had attempted to influence stockholders to vote for the proposed settlement.

But not all Doherty activities resulted in recriminations. On March 10, 1932, Florida observed a state-wide "Doherty day" in appreciation of his efforts to restore the state's resort business.

On his 66th birthday Cities Service promoted luncheons and picnics attended by 25,000 persons in communities scattered through 39 states.

He won wide acclaim too by his management of the Roosevelt birthday balls for the benefit of the Warm Springs Foundation for crippled children in Georgia and after the 1934 series a check for $1,000,000 went to the foundation.

Doherty was known at a tenacious fighter. Once, to counteract an editorial attack by the Kansas City, Mo., Star over gas rates, he bought an interest in the Kansas City Journal-Post.

which ships could move in relative safety. A neutral naval attache said it also would protect British warships in port from submarine attacks.

The admiralty did not indicate the number or types of mines to be used, but naval sources estimated that more than 200,000 would be required.

Coastwise minefields have been maintained since mid-September off the Thames estuary, in the Straits of Dover, and in a 20 by 85-mile belt off Flamborough head, near Hull, England.

A British mine field also extends along the German coast from Denmark to the Netherlands, covering entrances to the German sea and air bases of Sylt, Helgoland Bight, Cuxhaven, Wilhelmshaven, and Bremerhaven.

The admiralty said it believed Germany had mined a rectangular area in the north sea from 75 miles off Jutland southward to the Netherlands. Overlapping of the rival minefields was considered probable.

A squadron of Australian aviators and mechanics which arrived in England yesterday will be given brief active training before receiving war assignments.

Finns Negotiate to Buy War Materials From America

SEEK TRENCH MORTARS AND AMMUNITION

Military Mission Obtains 44 Plans; Asks Bids on 60,000 Gas Masks.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — A Finnish mission today opened negotiations for purchase of latest American trench mortars, anti-aircraft and anti-tank guns and sizeable supplies of ammunition.

The chief of the purchasing mission, Lieut. Gen. Vilho Petter Nenonen, famous Finnish artillery officer, discussed the Finns' needs with high war department officials and sought their cooperation in arranging for fast deliveries.

Col. Per Zilliacus, Finnish military attache, accompanied Menonen during his conferences at the war department.

The Finns are seeking 12.7 millimeter anti-aircraft machine guns, 76.2 millimeter anti-aircraft guns, 37 millimeter anti-tank guns and stokes mortars.

It was understood that the Finns are encountering some difficulties in obtaining early delivery of war orders in this country because of the fact that the American army is short of the weapons which they are seeking, and is bending every effort to speed up its own deliveries.

It has been the policy of the army not to allow any foreign orders to interfere with our own national defense program.

Navy Waives Rights.

Disclosure that the Finns are also seeking latest American anti-aircraft and anti-tank guns came after the navy recently waived its rights on delivery of 44 Brewster fighting planes out of an order of 54 to permit their purchase by the Finns. It was believed that they would be shipped from the United States about mid-January. The navy intends to take delivery of a later model.

The Finns also have asked for bids on 60,000 military gas masks from American companies. Informed sources said that contracts probably would be closed for the masks tomorrow or Friday.

Ashland Farmer Asks $25,000, Says Company Negligent.

ASHLAND — Charges that the defendent cut trees down and left unmarked stumps which contributed to his injuries have been filed against the Ohio Power company by Cortland Ringler of New London in a suit which asks $25,000 damages.

Ringler in his petition claims that he was knocked off a wagon while inspecting fence, because he claims that the defendant had cut down the trees on the premises, and then, instead of cutting them close to the ground, left them sticking out of the ground, unmarked.

The plaintiff claims that he sustained his injuries when the wagon wheel struck a hidden stump, and the jolt knocked him to the ground.

As a result of the incident, he claims that he sustained permanent injuries to his neck.

PUBLIC HEARING PROMISE GIVEN

New Industrial Commissioner Says Critics Will Get Chance to Voice Complaints.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—Critics of Ohio's workmen's compensation system today were promised public hearings and "a full and complete opportunity" to voice their complaints.

The assurance came from James A. White after Gov. John W. Bricker appointed him to the industrial commission to succeed J. W. Beall of Lima.

While unfamiliar with recent criticism of the commission's operations, White asserted that "if there are any rats gnawing at the vitals of the industrial commission fund, we will get the rats without it being necessary to burn down the barn to do it."

The criticism, with numerous recommendations for improvement, came from the Citizens Taxpayers League of Ohio, which urged that an "experienced insurance executive" be chosen to replace Beall.

White, a Columbus attorney and former president of the Ohio anti-saloon league, said his new position presented a "difficult task" but "I never was afraid of a hard job."

The taxpayer's league, accusing the commission of inefficient administration, said that $2,000,000 employer premiums for the workmen's compensation fund could be salvaged from 300,000 unaudited payroll reports.

Beall repeatedly complained that the commission was handicapped by lack of funds and manpower.

He reported that numerous economies had been effected since he became chairman in January, $600 a month being saved on postage alone.

Wheeler 'Natural For President,' Says Borah Friend

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— Sen. D. Worth Clark, D., Ida., whose views frequently coincide with those of his Republican colleague — Senator William E. Borah—said today that Sen. Burton K. Wheeler, D., Mont., "is a natural" for president in 1940.

Borah has not named his choice but is known to be one of Wheeler's strongest admirers.

Wheeler, who left his party in 1924 to run for vice-president on a Progressive ticket headed by the late Sen. Robert M. Lafollette of Wisconsin, said recently that his 1940 intentions would not be made public until President Roosevelt had cleared up the third term enigma.

Clark, in a formal statement, described Wheeler as "the ideal candidate for the party of that first great liberal, Thomas Jefferson.

WPA CONFINES OHIO MINE FIRE TO 30-MILE UNDERGROUND AREA

(By Associated Press)

NEW STRAITSVILLE—Southeastern Ohio's 55-year-old coal mine fire blazed on today, but the Work Projects Administration considered its fire-fighting activities successfully concluded.

During the past three years, three clay-filled tunnels have been constructed at a cost of $1,000,000 to prevent spread of the underground inferno.

Engineers predicted that without the barriers the flames, now confined to an area of about 30 square miles, would have traveled 40 miles to the Ohio river and 60 miles to Coshocton in the next 200 years.

Two of the tunnels, dug through coal veins to act as fire walls, are in Perry county and one in Hocking county. Generally, they are 14 feet wide and eight feet high, ranging in length from 1.25 miles to 640 feet.

The fires broke out simultaneously in five syndicate owned mines during strike violence in October, 1884. Unable to halt the flames, mining companies gradually left the territory and many residents were forced to abandon their homes. It was estimated that $55,000,000 worth of unmined coal has been destroyed in 55 years.

Efforts to extinguish the fire with water produced explosions which opened the earth and produced drafts which increased the blaze.

Adam J. Laverty, general superintendent of the project, said 250 WPA laborers would be dismissed Thursday and that headquarters would be abandoned as soon as possible.

G. O. P. LEADERS CONFER ON CITY JOBS TOMORROW

Executive Committee to Make Recommendations; Locke in Columbus Today.

Recommendations for appointments to city jobs will be made at a meeting of the Republican executive committee tomorrow night with Mayor-elect William J. Locke, Ralph Hardy, chairman announced today.

It is expected that Locke will be guided in his appointment of department heads by recommendations made by the committee for he has already said that he would be satisfied with its choice if those recommended to him were qualified with experience.

Faced with the problem of selecting a waterworks superintendent due to the death of Arthur McMullen who was slated to take over the position Jan. 1, the committee is expected to make at least seven recommendations including five department heads and two office employes.

These will include superintendencies of the waterworks, streets, garbage, sidewalks and sewer maintenance departments, along with recommendations for a telephone operator at city hall and the new mayor's secretary.

Hardy said it was also possible that the committee may pass on recommendations of a group of laborers, some of which will probably be named to replace incumbent Democratic appointees, scheduled to be ousted.

Meanwhile Locke was reported in Columbus today. It was believed that he planned to consult heads of the Public Employes Retirement board concerning the status of seven city employes over the ages of 70 who have filed requests with the present administration to remain in service during 1940.

FINN WARRIORS BEAT BACK NEW RUSSIAN ATTACK

Riddle Red Forces Making Way Over Frozen Lakes With Light and Heavy Guns.

Russian air force, which is bombing the southern part of the country with increasing intensity, I learned today.

It is impossible for me even to indicate the nature of the retort which the Finns intend to make to the bombing campaign. But I have reason to believe that the Finns have something about ready which they are confident will make the Russians sorry if they continue bombing civilian centers.

Evacuate Last Residents.

Special trains were ready today to take away more of the 7,000 people remaining in this city of 70,000. Authorities had ordered that all must go who could.

Authoritative informants said that 42 civilian centers in southern and central Finland had been bombed by the Russians within the last few days and that most of the places bombed had no military significance.

At Porvoo, a little town about 30 miles east of Helsinki, 10 bombs were dropped. The only two of them which exploded killed nine persons and wounded 20, all civilians.

The Russians made three bombing raids on Viipuri yesterday. Twenty-five bombs fell in one neighborhood. They smashed a number of homes and restaurants and it was reported that two civilians were killed.

Stalin's Friends In Command, Report.

COPENHAGEN —(AP)— Fresh Soviet Russian legions under the command of Joseph Stalin's personal friends were reported by the Finnish military command today to be marching into the central and arctic fronts for new smashes against the stubborn Finns.

Coming on the heels of reported Finnish drives as much as 50 miles in some sectors, the Finnish northern army headquarters said 300,000 picked Red army soldiers were being massed to counteract recent retreats.

The Russians have lost 4,000 men in the sub-zero cold of the arctic fighting the last three days, dispatches from the Finnish headquarters said.

Russian strategy was foreseen by military observers to be a renewed drive to cut Finland in half along the "waistline" and a campaign near Hoyhenjarvi, south of the Salmijarvi mining region, where the Red army was reported last week in hasty retreat.

The Finnish army, which in the last three days reported throwing Russians back 50 miles in the central Salla district, was getting set for a new drive on the Kemijarvi railroad. The Soviet campaign was seen by the Finns as headed for the Swedish border at the Gulf of Bothnia.

Although outnumbered, the Finnish command counted on the bitter arctic weather, as well as military strategy, to withstand the expected attack.

General Kurt M. Walenius, northern forces' commander, was quoted as saying the Finns generally faced a Russian division of about 18,000 men with a battalion of about 600.

DEATH CLAIMS REV. CULLER, 93

'Grand Old Man' of Lutheran Ministry Was Native of Richland County.

taken to the historic Mt. Zion church near Lucas for baptism.

He received his elementary training in the rural schools of the county and enrolled in Wittenberg college—then just a new school—in the fall of 1867, graduating in 1871, and was the oldest living alumni of the Lutheran college.

He was ordained to the ministry in 1873 following the completion of theological training then offered by the college.

His first parish was made up of three little country churches near Bryan, O., and the young pastor rode horseback through the woods, winter and summer, to call on his parishioners and to preach.

That was the beginning of a preaching career that has covered more than two-thirds of a century. He later served parishes in Illinois, Iowa and Ohio. Early in his ministry he was called to Newton, Ia., where he served until 1884 and then went to Burlington, Ia., where he started a new church, the 50th anniversary of which was celebrated in 1935 and which he attended.

Rev. Culler served St. Paul's Lutheran church at Bucyrus from 1894 until 1900 and then went to Wapakoneta where he established another new church, and where, in recognition of his work, the late Andrew Carnegie made a gift of an expensive organ. He went to Springfield in 1911 and was pastor of West Liberty church there until his retirement in 1915.

It was after his retirement that he came to First Lutheran church in Mansfield and served as pastor during the absence of the regular minister, Rev. S. P. Long. He also served as supply pastor of the Fourth Lutheran church in Springfield since his retirement.

He was always an active worker for his university and at one time served as president of the board of trustees. He was a member of the first board of education of the old General Synod of the Lutheran church, and he had been president and secretary of the Wittenberg Synod and also of the Iowa Synod.

At one time he declined the presidency of the Carthage (Ill.) college. His wife preceded him in death several years ago and he has since lived with his daughter, Miss Violet Culler in Springfield. He frequently visited in Mansfield and at the farm on which he was born and spent his boyhood.

Besides his daughter, he is survived by a niece, Mrs. Floyd Cole, near Loudonville; two nephews, David R. Culler, on the homestead near Lucas, and Caron Culler, Pittsburgh, and a number of cousins.

Funeral services will be held in Fourth Lutheran church at Springfield at 2:30 p. m. Thursday with burial in Ferncliff cemetery there.

FINLAND BUOYS BALKANS' HOPES

Russians been able to pass the Mannerheim line on the Karelian isthmus. They have been driven back from their attempt to sever Finland at the "waistline." And reports from the Norwegian border in the far north have described the Russian retreat as approaching a "catastrophe," though we still have much to learn about that situation.

Fresh Finnish successes are reported in today's news.

The Finns, taking these facts in stride, remark that they think they can hold out indefinitely if they get quick supplies of planes, anti-aircraft guns and artillery. Just like that.

When the invasion of Finland began, Russia had so strengthened her position that she held the balance of power in eastern Europe. Indeed the whole of Europe was regarding the Soviet either with fear or anxiety because of the Muscovites' vast resources and that mystery army of a potential eighteen million men, with fleets of tanks, and only the red Kremlin knew how many fighting planes.

Lived In Dread.

The rest of northern Europe was in a dither, fearing that the Russian drive would extend westward. The Balkans were living in constant dread of invasion. Italy was on pins and needles because of the threat of the Balkan peninsula. The Anglo-French allies were considering gravely what it would mean if Russia by chance should actually join forces with Germany.

Much of that has been changed by the Finnish stand. The small countries have plucked up courage. Fear of Russia hasn't disappeared, but mistakenly or not, the Balkans and northern states are prepared to fight to defend themselves.

I understand that Rumania, for example, which has been in a most precarious position, has been greatly encouraged by the Finnish success and is fully determined to fight to the limit if invaded. All the small countries realize that even if Finland should go under, she already has established herself solidly in the eyes of the world and can expect redress ultimately for any wrongs that may be done. They figure that like resistance on their part would bring similar aid.

Beyond this, the Russo-Finnish war tends to keep the Soviet from striking elsewhere. So little Finland is in a way protecting a big slice of the continent.

Again, Russia can't continue such a war as is being waged in Finland and give Germany the supplies Herr Hitler so badly needs.

All this works out to the fact that when the Anglo-French allies aid Finland—as they are— they are doing a good job of aiding themselves.

SNOW CRIPPLES OHIO TRAFFIC

Drifts Clog Roads in Southern Part of State; 2-inch Fall Blankets County.

said the plows would be pressed into service this afternoon if the snow continued. State highway patrol reports said state routes in northcentral Ohio were reasonably free of snow, but were slippery.

The storm which swept into Ohio from the southwest, was the same one that brought heavy snow to the "dust bowl" area of Texas and Kansas, ending a prolonged drought, meteorologists said.

Northern Ohio, usually hardest hit by snowstorms, had only a light fall at noon today, but the snow increased in depth farther south in the state. Cincinnati had a five-inch fall; Columbus four inches, and Dayton, three. The storm apparently centered between Columbus and Cincinnati where a 30-mile wind piled high drifts across highways.

Buses and trains were running from 10 minutes to an hour behind schedule and motor travel was virtually at a standstill south of Columbus.

Much colder weather was expected to follow the storm. Below zero temperatures were reported for the first time this winter in the northwest and at Havre, Mont., it was 16 below. It was zero in western Nebraska.

In the northern Great Lakes area, however, a winter "heat wave" was reported. For the first time in the 66-year history of the Detroit weather bureau the temperature failed to get below 20 degrees above zero by Dec. 26. The mercury dipped to 18 above in Detroit today.

WHAT TO DO FOR ECZEMA ITCHING AND BURNING

Wash the affected parts with Resinol Soap and warm water to soften scales and crusts. Resinol Soap is suggested because it contains no excess of free alkali, and cleanses the tender skin so carefully. Dry by patting with a soft cloth—do not rub.

Many doctors recommend an oily ointment because it holds the medication in contact with the irritated skin surface, giving prolonged action. Resinol Ointment meets this requirement, and does even more. For nearly 45 years it has been—and still is—successfully used to relieve quickly the itching and burning of eczema. It contains soothing ingredients that aid healing.

Use Resinol Ointment today and enjoy comfort tomorrow. Get a jar, also a cake of Resinol Soap, at any drug store. For free sample, write to Resinol, Dept. 87, Baltimore, Md.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 27, 1939.

Some fellows seem to have such an open mind that nothing much stays in it.

According to an anthropologist, "The blond is passing out"—but she'll probably be all right again by late afternoon of the next day.

Internal Unity Is Necessary

LOOKING back over 1939 and attempting to hit upon some one thing most likely to contribute to the well-being of millions of people in the United States during 1940 — and thereafter — few happenings of the closing year are more impressive, in their futility and waste, than the long-drawn-out Chrysler strike in Detroit, with its associated losses extending into all parts of the country.

It is such clashes as this, either large or small, that point strongly to the need for more intelligent processes by which differences between employers and employes can be adjusted without resort to shutting off production and bringing heavy losses to all parties concerned.

In a recent lengthy statement the Congress of American Industry has included a declaration of principles in which the mutual interests of employer, employe, investor and consumer are clearly presented.

Internal unity is an essential to national strength and individual welfare.

Accepting a system of free enterprise as necessary to further progress, the congress calls on industrial management to do its part in assuring the benefits of that system to the American people.

The profit motive, it is pointed out, is essential to investment and to development of managerial ability, but pursuit of profit must not be the sole consideration. Also to be taken into account is the preservation of individual enterprise, recognition of the interests of consumers and workers, and the creation and maintenance of public good will.

From the standpoint of all parties concerned, employers, employes, investors and the public, some method of maintaining harmonious relations between what have come to be rather loosely termed "capital" and "labor" offers opportunities for further progressive steps in 1940—with elimination, insofar as possible, of the disturbing influences and the alien agitation which have complicated employer-employe negotiations in various trouble zones during the present year.

Study Relief Variations

THE COUNCIL OF STATE GOVERNMENTS has been collecting information throughout the country on relief practices. A surprising range in relief payments has been discovered.

For example, the average allowance in Oklahoma is $3.38. New York's average is $34.28. In Ohio, to which a recent relief crisis called national attention, the monthly average is $16.18, a sum considerably below the averages in other industrial states.

These differences are not wholly accounted for by differences in human needs or differences in food and clothing costs. Various relief systems may be more efficient, more wasteful, more generous, or more closely adapted to actual needs. Even the highest sum, if it is the recipient's main reliance, certainly does not encourage indulgence in luxuries. The lowest sum, in many cases, must mean that some recipients are existing on a level far below the ideal American standard of living, if not actually little above starvation.

These are matters for earnest public consideration, not simply of relief workers, officials and relief clients. They are the urgent concern of every American citizen, who should be interested in, and seeking, ways to end the need for relief of this kind.

Some Sure Prophecies

THERE is one kind of prophet who can foretell events with serene assurance that time will prove him right. That is the astronomer. Dr. Oliver J. Lee of Northwestern University studied his astronomical calendar for next year and gave an inquiring reporter a list of the celestial shows for 1940.

The earth will pass through nine meteor showers which should be visible on certain nights which he named. Rain, snow, fog and so on may prevent people here and there from seeing them, but the "shooting stars" will shoot just the same.

There will be a total eclipse on October 1, but not for us, unless we go to northern South America or southern Africa to watch it. The transit of the planet Mercury across the disc of the sun in November and an annular eclipse in April are other confident forecasts.

Dr. Lee might have added that the sun will rise and set daily and the moon continue in its course and the seasons will come and go in their usual way in 1940. There is comfort for many people in such assurance.

Soviet Friendship

MANY Americans must have been fascinated by the message Adolf Hitler sent to Stalin on the latter's birthday. It said:

"Please accept my most sincere congratulations. I join therewith my best wishes for your personal welfare, as well as a happy future for nations befriended by the Soviet Union."

The fascinating part is that last wish—"a happy future for the nations befriended by the Soviet Union." It must set people to thinking. And millions of people in Germany and other countries must be thinking, "God help us when we are befriended by the Soviet Union!"

The best example is Finland, to which Adolf's Communist partner renewed his pledges of friendship only last winter. The next beneficiaries of Russian friendship may be the Balkans and the Scandinavian countries, which have had similar pledges. And if Stalin succeeds there, Germany herself may soon feel the weight of his friendship.

Time moves so swiftly that little Herbert Hoover Smith has already been signed by the Cleveland Rams—and almost any day now Franklin Roosevelt Jones may be expected to start looking for a pot of gold at the end of the rainbow.

According to Mr. Farley, "a politician's greatest asset is a reputation for keeping his word." Will Mr. Diogenes please bring his lantern.

There's also the thought that chewing gum manufacturers might redeem the chewed wads for 3 per cent of the purchase price.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Those Katzenjammer Kids of Hellzapoppin, Olsen and Johnson, gave a Christmas party for the New York Drama Critics the other night, and quite a surprise party it turned out to be. The occasion was the opening of the second edition of Hellzapoppin, and with all the critics in their seats the fun began. It was "variations on an old theme"—bingo—with prizes being called out for those people who occupied certain seats.

The seats, of course, were carefully selected in advance, so that when a certain number on the aisle was called out, who should be sitting there, grinning, but Robert Benchley. Whereupon Olson, yelling "Here's a surprise for you" ran gleefully down the aisle and placed a live chicken in Benchley's lap.

Mark Barron, the AP's critic, all dolled up in a new dinner jacket, received a ten-pound sack of flour. You can imagine what his tuxedo looked like when they slammed this flour down in his lap. Another critic received a cake of ice, and another a wash-tub.

These genial activities spilled over into the audience, as the Bingo idea will carry on from night to night, and as an example, Mrs. Al Smith, by sheer "chance," drew a beautiful corsage. Mr. and Mrs. Billy Rose were surprised with a new mop and a baby's high-chair. During the course of the evening a goose laid an egg which drifted down from the ceiling by parachute and came to rest in a lady's lap.

STILL another strain of casual confusion may be found on any Monday afternoon about four o'clock in NBC's studio 3A. Yesterday these things were taking place.

Larry Clinton was sprawled across the top of a piano, making last minute alterations on an arrangement. He sits on more pianos than Helen Morgan.

Richard Brook, the announcer, was roaming around with a big yellow scarf and a brick-red hat on his black head, carrying a manuscript.

Ford Leary, whose chestnut curls get curlier and whose chest gets thicker every time you look at him, was bouncing around like a cheer-leader whose team has a long lead at the half. Ford was visiting. He "visits" continually, with everybody in the studio, bouncing up and down.

* * *

IT WAS, of course, those final moments of insanity before rehearsals for Clinton's radio show began. The technicians were in their little glass cage. The brass section was brassing around. Somebody's kid was yelling, "I want a new wrist watch."

Suddenly Clinton yelled, "Pardon me while I answer a few letters, will you?" At these words a girl jumped up and brought over a stack of letters. She hauled out a tablet and pencil, and Clinton hastily dictated replies to people who had written him letters. . . . One from the University of North Carolina, another from a girl in Georgia, still another from a co-ed at the University of Minnesota. . . .

Then whoever was in charge of the rehearsal bawled out, "Let's go."

Clinton sat down in front of the band and said, "Well, why not; we're ready" . . . as if he had been sitting there, patiently, an hour.

Investigations Taking New Form

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON—The day of the congressional "killer" investigation has arrived to displace the long series of whoop-er-up investigations designed to put across pet pieces of legislation.

Many of the methods adopted by the one are about as fantastic as those of the other.

Two "killer" investigations are underway and a third has already completed its work. The Smith committee investigating the National Labor Relations Board has already brought out enough evidence of dissension and peculiar performances to put the board's life in some jeopardy at the coming session of congress.

The Dies committee was largely credited with bringing about the defeat of Frank Murphy last year in his race for re-election as Governor of Michigan. It is adding to the shelling directed by the Smith committee at the Wagner Act.

The House investigation of WPA activities last summer killed the Federal Theater Project by exposing an over-dosage of Communist influence.

* * *

The Older Pattern.

WHAT a contrast are these to the pattern of earlier investigations of the type which began with the securities and banking investigation in 1933 and 1934. Banking practices, stock market manipulations and phoney security flotations were paraded before the incredulous eyes of a newly critical congress and a country at large, both of which were smarting under the scorch of the depression. Out of it came the Securities and Exchange Commission and a volume of legislation designed to make good bankers out of bad bankers and to wipe out trick security issues altogether. It has worked so effectively that now the cries arise from the other direction—that regulation is stifling enterprise.

The Insull debacle brought a demand for drastic utility reform. The holding company bill resulted. At the hour of a crusial test as to the kind of teeth it would have, the Black anti-lobbying investigation got busy. A utility company had tried to drum up an appearance of public antipathy to the bill by sending in a volume of protests.

Unfortunately, most of the protestants had names beginning with letters C to G. An enterprising utility company agent in Pennsylvania had simply picked up a telephone book and began dispatching telegrams signed by directory names as fast as he could copy them. The committee caught him before he reached the Jones, Smiths and Zilches. It had a three day circus out of that. Other utility protests, many quite valid, were discredited and the bill was whooped across.

* * *

Wheeler Half Successful.

IT TOOK two years of munitions investigation to reveal a degree of corruption in the international munitions trade and to raise some real questions about what got us inthe last war. But the result of that investigation was the neutrality act which has troubled the administration ever since.

Senator Wheeler of Montana conducted a virtually one-man investigation of railroads to help him jam across some regulatory rail legislation. Much of it, however, is still on the calendar and in these days of increasing prestige for the once-spurned banker and big business man, it hasn't such a good chance of passing.

A House tax investigation piloried several dozen greater and lesser tax dodgers to help whip across the corporate surplus tax and the tax against personal holdings companies. It took a resurgence of the depression to shake off some of that.

But now, temporarily at any rate, the shoe is on the other foot. The left winger is no longer the potential savior of his country and the bringer of greater liberties. The Dies committee has made him merely a member of a "transmission belt" toward Communism.

Timely Editorial

Communism In Office.

The retention of an avowed Communist as assistant to the president of the Borough of Manhattan is now being protested by the American Youth League.

The American Legion and other patriotic and religious organizations protested vigorously against the appointment of Simon Gerson to this post, without success.

And now Borough President Stanley Isaacs, who has staunchly defended Gerson, will listen to what a delegation from the Youth League has to say on the subject.

About all that need be said seems to have been said by a New York clergyman: "There is no doubt in my mind that Mr. Isaacs should oust him because a Communist is against God and country."

An avowed Communist is an avowed enemy of the American system of government.

And giving Communists public office under that government doesn't strike the majority of Americans as the best way to protect it from subversion.—Detroit Free Press.

Service To the Community.

Editor News-Journal:

The gifts we give loved ones and friends are pleasing, but they soon pass on into accepted things. The thoughts and action we bestow upon our community live in the hearts of our people. This coming year is something besides just a calendar milestone. It can be, and will be fruitful, if it is looked upon as further time for service.

There will be a new city administration, the component parts of which, legislative and executive and judicial, will need a spirit of co-operation in order to best function. It will require something else. The thoughtful patience, helpful understanding and willing co-operative spirit of the people at large will be needed. That, among other things, will be community service.

There will be our individual lives and careers. They must go on. Are they going ahead with care and thoughtful application to our daily tasks, no matter how small? If so, they will be of real service to ourselves and our community. There will exist, as ever, the projects and needs of our city and county. They must be met and acted upon. For the general good, certainly, if we all hope to better our surroundings. They will need the individual and collective thought of all of us. To do so will be a real co-operative community service.

Let's give some unselfish thought to our parts in the coming year's civic, public administration and social hopes of our community; the place where we all intend to go on working and living. Like the quiet endless dignity of a great soul, we can together think in service to our community. In doing so, we can, and will, do real good for ourselves and our neighbor.

Everyday Poem

—By GEORGE ELLISTON

Since Finding You.

I am not only happier
But stronger for your touch.
I cannot tell you how it is
But, loving very much

The sight of you, I find you give
Me power, new joy and strength,
So that I can defeat all ills,
Go courage's far length.

I cannot tell you why this is,
I only know it's true,
And that I'm twice the man I was
Since knowing, loving you

WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Returning congressional leaders are getting a nudge and a promise in their private talks with the president.

The nudge is fight talk against the GOP. Roosevelt is telling his Capitol Hill lieutenants that the Democrats must assume a more "aggressive" attitude toward the Republicans. "Up and at 'em" is his demand.

"We don't want them to get the jump on us at this session as they did last year," he told one leader. "We should stick together and take the offensive. They haven't got anything. All they have been doing is to hammer us. The thing for us to do now is to give them a dose of their own medicine."

His promise was that at the coming session, he would "see more of the boys" and lend a more sympathetic ear to their advice. In addition to the regular Monday morning pow-wow with the floor leaders, he says he also plans to confer with committee chairmen and the steering committees on important measures.

Secret Codes.

STATE DEPARTMENT officials are confident they have a code system for transmission of super-secret messages which is proof from detection. They are well aware that the belligerents bend every effort to break down foreign codes, and that the British have a world-famous expert who devotes himself to nothing else.

U. S. messages are probably intercepted every day. European nations have such control over their telegraphic services that the governments may take copies of any incoming cables. And some of the U. S. messages are in relatively simple codes which can be broken down by experts. But if the code merely delays the foreign decipherer for a few hours, that is usually sufficient for the purposes of the message.

But when something hot is to be transmitted, the state department code experts open an inner drawer in a safe, located in a top-floor room with an iron-grill door and a "Positively No Admittance" sign—and take out the special cipher book.

This book shows no signs of age. It has recently come into use, and it will soon go out of use. Therein lies the trick of safety. If you change your code often enough, you keep one jump ahead of the code-breakers. Also, this code avoids conventional patterns and creates unique and unexpected combinations of its own.

This is the only way a government can communicate privately with its representatives abroad. There is a great deal of trans-Atlantic telephoning these days, but no such telephone conversation is completely safe from official eavesdropping.

* * *

Munich Code Rush.

THE RECORD of code messages sent and received by the state department's communications office is an index to history. In September, 1934, that office handled 191,000 code groups and words. By September, 1937, when Sino-Japanese troubles were breaking, the number jumped to 440,000. In September of 1938, which included the Munich crisis, the number was 516,000. And in September of this year, it jumped to the amazing total of 1,007,000 words.

Since war broke, this office has worked at a terrific pace, handling as many as 60,000 code groups and words in a single day—enough to make a full length book.

For protection against leakage in handling secret messages here, Division Chief David A. Salmon picks clerks he can trust—and he doesn't trust them too much. In no other division of the department is there such scrutiny of character and personal habits.

Furthermore, the messages are handled piecemeal, so that no single clerk sees the whole of any message. An incoming message of 1,000 words will be broken up into perhaps 25 sheets. The clerk who decodes the first sheet gets only about 40 words to work on, and the next sheet assigned to him will have no connection with the first.

The typists who copy the decoded message get a better look at the text, but they work under such pressure that there is little time to reflect on the meaning.

Lothian and Cornwallis.

BRITISH soldiers, dead 150 years, turned over in their Virginia graves when a modern Britisher—a lord, at that—came back to Yorktown and spent a night in the house where General Cornwallis made his surrender.

British Ambassador Lord Lothian slept as peacefully in Yorktown as if there had been no Revolutionary war.

Lothian was invited to Williamsburg, to be inducted into the honorary fraternity Phi Beta Kappa. Counselor R. Walton Moore of the state department invited Lothian to extend his trip to other historic spots of Virginia, and Lothian accepted.

"Judge" Moore, who went along as guide, took an impish pleasure in bunking Lothian at Yorktown and explaining the details of the battle which ended in Cornwallis' surrender. They stayed in the very house which Cornwallis had used as headquarters, now owned by Wayne Taylor of the Red Cross.

Note: — Only dampener to Moore was that Lothian proved to be something of an expert himself, knowing more about U. S. history than most Americans.

Profitable Week.

THAT extra week which Roosevelt added to the Christmas shopping calendar by moving Thanksgiving ahead paid sweet dividends to business.

According to preliminary commerce department estimates, sales ran better than 8 per cent over 1938. Department store trade, the bulk of Christmas business, was around $550,000,000—an increase of $40,000,000 over last year. Buying in variety shops, five-and-tens and higher priced stores showed similar boosts.

High note of the shopping splurge was the big jump in "luxury" sales. There was much more expensive buying this year than last.

As usual, the lion's share of purchasing was in toys. This year it was around 68 per cent of the Christmas business. Next was women's wear, men's gloves and ties and leather goods. Christmas trees also boomed, with around 15,000,000 sold for a total of $10,000,000. This is a 10 per cent rise over 1938.

* * *

Popular Landon.

THE throng of emissaries of the various GOP presidential candidates who swarmed around Alf Landon during his recent Washington visit was something to see. It was like flies around a sugar bowl.

They were after two things: One, to find out whom he favored for 1940. Two, to try to win his nod.

But the Kansan, while cordial to all comers, kept his nods and his opinions to himself. Real inside is that Landon has no choice among the aspirants, and doesn't expect to have any for some time to come. He is still looking them over.

Unlike Hoover, Landon has no comeback yearnings. He is interested in only one thing—that the party's 1940 standard bearer be a liberal. For this Landon is prepared to fight to the last ditch—and he has plenty with which to wage his battle.

Night Marauder

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

I WALKED westward along the highway, just before bedtime, because the night was beautiful and I wanted to enjoy it. A bright moon scudded in and out among the clouds. The earth was sleeping, still and warm for the time of year. I was quite comfortable, walking, without my overcoat. The soil was left without a trace of frost, but a light coat of sticky mud gave my tingling palms and fingers a pleasant earthy odor after I used my hands to slow my way down a roadside bank.

A little farther west I heard a rustle in the brambles, as if several wild folk were crawling slowly. I stood on the opposite side of the road, at attention, waiting. Presently a long shiny nose came down the short, steep bank. The moon came out, and I could discern a white stripe down the animal's back and a spot of white above the bushy tail. It was mother skunk, and four half-grown young ones followed her. I stood, still at attention, and reviewed the marching family. They passed close before me in the bright moonlight. I feared to move, although I was too near for comfort. They did not seem to know that I was there. (Their ignorance was my bliss.)

The wily mother led across the sandy ditch to a rotten log. She dug deep with her strong-clawed forepaw and produced three moist white grubs which she ate greedily, much as a boy eats peanuts, then she turned aside, bidding the family dig for themselves. They went to work and the dirt and rotten wood flew in little sprays, amply rewarded by choice morsels of edible food.

Suddenly the mother raised her head and sniffed. Then, very businesslike, she moved toward a nearby thicket of matted grass and weeds. I heard the flutter of wings and one wild screaming note of terror. The skunk came back dragging the writhing body of a hen pheasant. The whole family got busy with the kill.

Mentally I protested at the act of violence. Actually, I turned my back and walked away. For I have learned, through sad experience, that it is healthier for a man and for his family, to let alone this ruthless marauder of the night. All skunks are alike.

TELL BILL GOODBYE + + + + + +

By MARIE BLIZARD
(Copyright, 1939.)

CHAPTER THIRTY-ONE

Nine o'clock was striking in the church tower when Fabienne and Ellen came out of Willoughby house. Nicky and Bill appeared from opposite directions at the precise moment the two girls appeared in the lighted doorway.

"Makes me think of my college days," Ellen commented. "Do you know, Fabienne, I haven't had such fun in years as I've been having since you came into my life? I can work hard for hours and hours every day and then, surprisingly, turn into a real party girl. It probably isn't decent! My life is supposed to be devoted to charity."

"All work and no play . . . . you know the rest of it. What shall we do tonight? Hi, fellers!"

"We were just trying to decide what to do tonight," Ellen told Nicky, who had come to her side at once.

"How about some bridge?" Fab asked.

"We can't, Fab," Ellen reminded her. "The apartment was being painted today and it's much too cold to keep all the windows open."

"You can come to my digs," Bill offered. "They're clean but not comfortable."

"Lead on," Nicky called.

"You know, Bill," Fabienne said to him in the rumble seat of Nicky's car, where she huddled under his great coat, "I never thought of you as having a home. I always sort of imagined you sleeping on a cot in the hospital. You go there every night late, don't you?"

He nodded. "Have to tuck the kids in," he told her.

"And wake them up, too," she said smiling. "You work pretty hard."

"I can stand it. I'm tough. Remember? That's what you thought you were. How's the sergeant?"

"He's fine," she said, grinning broadly, happy because he remembered little things about her. "He's on safari, hunting mice all over the place and terribly disappointed to find the exterminator had got there first."

"I'll bring him one tomorrow," Bill promised.

* * *

His "digs" were three strangely bare rooms, spotlessly clean, impossibly untidy, in the rear of a box-like apartment house in East Forty-ninth street.

Fabienne's eyes ate up every detail of the square living room, filling in pictures from the tales the furnishings told her. The neat desk and the worn books, the depression in the desk chair and the gooseneck lamp, bent and tarnished, told a story of hours of study late at night. Of the four other chairs in the room only one was worn; Bill entertained one person at a time. Bill was not a party boy. There were only three pictures on the walls; a framed photograph of a college campus, a Holbein reprint, a very good one, and a handsome antique map.

Bill was taking off her coat, saying, "I told you it was clean but not comfortable. Make yourself at home. I'll get some drinks. Bartlett, you'll find the card table in the hall closet."

Nicky said, "You got a kitchen here? I'd like to see it."

"Regular old woman, isn't he?" Ellen said smiling. "Oh, Bill, are the cards in your desk?"

Bill called back from the kitchen, "No, you'll find 'em on the top of the bookcase in the bedroom."

Nicky came to the kitchen door. "Fab, come here! Wouldn't you trust a guy who can't cook to have a prize stove? Come and look at all the little gadgets."

Bill said, "The last tenants left it. All the housekeeping I do is fix coffee in the morning."

Fabienne looked around the kitchen and saw mute evidences of Bill's meager bachelor existence: a single plate and cup and saucer neatly placed beside a shining percolator, a row of unmatched glasses, a can opener, a tin of biscuits and an electric fruit squeezer occupied the uncurtained cupboard.

Poor Bill! He deserved better than that. He deserved what Ellen could give him and what Fabienne would have given a portion of her life to offer. And yet, she didn't deep in her heart—want Ellen to give it to him.

* * *

In the bedroom Ellen looked on top of the bookcase beside Bill's narrow bed for the cards that were not there. She went across the room to look on top of the highboy.

There were no cards, but there was a hair brush, a comb, a stethoscope, a leather collar box and, in back of the collar box, a newspaper clipping of a girl's picture. It was Fabienne, radiant and glowing, with a corsage of orchids dripping from the collar of her sable coat.

It was the same picture young Tomassino had shown the doctor one day in September, long before Bill Mallory and Fabienne had met in the clinic that fateful day.

Ellen caught her underlip beneath her teeth and hastily drew the picture out from its hiding place, setting it up in plain view in front of the collar box. No, it would be more obvious if she propped it up in front of the mirror. Fabienne, if she came in to comb her hair, would be more sure to see it then. Perhaps if she had some idea of how Bill felt about her.

Bill said, "Hi, Ellen! I forgot. I put the cards in the desk drawer. Come get your drink before the ice melts."

Ellen came back into the living room with her eyes dancing.

"Cut for partner?" Fabienne asked.

"Let's you and me take on those two," Bill said.

"Good idea," Nicky said. "Fabienne and I are like old married people, we've played together so many times we know all the signals."

Ellen's dancing eyes were still. Stupid! She'd been thinking of Bill, forgetting that Nicky had first place in Fabienne's thoughts. She said, "Two hearts," meaning something entirely different.

They played a rubber and, passing Fabienne on her way to changing seats, Ellen ran her hand over the back of Fabienne's hair. "You're all mussed, darling," she said. "Look at your hair."

"There's a mirror in the bedroom," Bill told her.

"Thanks, I'll only be a minute." Fabienne pushed away her chair and went into the bedroom, going straight to the highboy mirror with her comb in hand.

She ran the comb through her hair, frowning at its uneven part in the mirror. Then she saw the picture!

* * *

She glanced about covertly, making sure that Ellen was not following her, and then slipped it under the collar box. A fine kettle of fish it would be if Ellen saw that picture on Bill's mirror! What it was doing there didn't occur to her for even one moment. She was more concerned about Ellen's reaction if she were to see it.

When she came back into the living room with nothing to show what she had seen, Bill was saying, "Congratulations, old man," and shaking Nicky's hand.

"What's up?" Fabienne asked.

"Joined the working classes, old girl," Nicky informed her, quite pleased with himself. "I'm going to work in the family's New York office on Monday. Vice president in charge of coupons slipped in all cigaret packages."

"Nicky!" Fabienne flew around the table and, grasping his shoulders in her hands, made him look at her. "You grand person! At last I've convinced you that you ought to make something of yourself! I'm proud, darling!" She gave him a lasting kiss on his wrinkled forehead.

Nicky gulped unhappily and turned sheepish eyes to Ellen, who said, "I think it's your deal, Nicky."

She presented the past presidents with gifts, and was the recipient of a Bible given by some of the members as a token of her service during the past year.

A Christmas party followed with Mrs. Claude Hunter in charge. The gifts, which were exchanged, were arranged on a lace covered table, and suitable holiday appointments. A large tree was also used as decoration.

Mrs. Hunter was appointed to the position of third council member during the meeting.

Plans were made for the installation of the new officers at the next meeting which will be held Jan. 8 at the building.

Shopping Around...

With MARIANNE

IF SANTA CLAUS was a nice enough fellow to leave a big fat check in your Christmas stocking, and you're pondering over just what to buy with it, you'll probably decide on a new dress after a glance around the downtown stores.

* * *

Marianne

Printed silk jerseys in a variety of styles and a riot of colors are ideal at this time of year and really do brighten up one's winter wardrobe. . . . The new lalique material, which has a rather sheer overprint of tiny flowers, has been used to make lovely afternoon gowns in rose and navy, beige and brown combinations. . . . As is to be expected at this season, prints are quite the thing, and I saw one while shopping yesterday that was rather conservative and still pretty gay—a tiny dubonnet figure on a blue background formed the dress, which was trimmed with a dubonnet oilcloth shoulder flower and wide girdle belt.

* * *

BLACK is always smart, and the afternoon frocks for this winter are trimmed with crisp white pique or fluffy lace. . . . I saw four especially smart dresses of this type downtown yesterday. . . . One had a tucked bodice and sleeves and was trimmed with a dainty white lace yoke. . . . Another, fashioned along fitted lines, had white ruching on the bodice and the wrists of the long sleeves. . . . A black frock, which had white eyelet pique collar and cuffs, was made with a vestee type bodice and fastened with shining rhinestone buttons. . . . A fitted model of black crepe was relieved with a panel of white eyelet pique and lace, extending from the neckline to the hem, just a little off-center to the left.

* * *

Speaking of black, it seems to be the thing for hats just now too. . . . Yes, they're showing new spring numbers now—these combine ribbon and straw in sailors and other small, low crowned models. . . . The large Town and Country hats with wide bengaline streamers which are so popular this year, can be had now in soft pastel shades such as pink, pale blue, lavender and gold—as well as brown, navy and black, of course.

* * *

ALTHOUGH it can't be worn under the sun, there is something new to tell you about today—a shower coat that is made with long, full sleeves, tiny peter pan collar, girdled waistline and full skirt. . . . It will fit all sizes, and consequently can be worn over a heavy coat in winter time and look just as well as when worn over a spring dress. . . . The rubber material has a scrolled floral design and comes in blue, green or red.

* * *

Local shops are showing any number of bedroom accessories that are especially nice just now—satin quilted boxes for kerchiefs, hosiery, and gloves will lend color—as well as order—to the best dressing table drawers, while perfumed satin hangers are just the thing for any boudoir closet.

* * *

IS IT THIS TIME of year that you find your hands getting rough and red from too much water and cold chafing winds? Then you'll be more than pleased with a pair of Kreme Skin Beauty gloves—these can be worn with ease while you're doing all kinds of housework, and they will keep your hands soft and white because they're treated with special creme that won't wash out.

* * *

ADDED ATTRACTIONS: Streamlined salt and pepper shakers of shining chrome with the letters S and P forming the condiment holes. . . . Folding silk travel kits with water proof lining and pockets for washcloth, soap, toothbrush, paste and other toilet essentials. . . . Three bars of soap (each one a pound) combined in an attractive box come in pastel shades and white in scents of gardenia, pine and rose geranium.

Coming Days to Be Busy Ones For Mansfielders, Friends

THE last few days of the current year, and the first of 1940 look as if Mansfielders and their guests are going to be very busy. Of course right now there are those hectic moments of keeping the children's new toys picked up, exchanging the too small garments, and selecting the decorations for the New Year parties.

And speaking of New Year parties the forecast is for many private ones seeing the holiday arrives on a Sunday evening, and many of the places of public entertainment will not be opened. Two of the first to announce plans for Dec. 31 are the Utilian club and the Jolly 12 club. Members of the first group will entertain their husbands at Schwarz' Tavern on the Lexington avenue road.

Those in charge are Mrs. Carl Heim, Mrs. Otis Sowash, Mrs. Carl Hartman, Mrs. Omar Henderson and Mrs. Amos Day. Mr. and Mrs. F. F. Fishback, 12 South Mulberry street, will open their home for the party of the second group.

In addition a number of large organizations in the city are preparing for their traditional open house celebrations on Monday.

Other outstanding events of the coming long week-end are the weddings. On Saturday Miss Jeanne Cramer and Donald E. Howe will be married at 2 o'clock at the First Methodist church, while Miss Edna Keller of this city and Jack Way of Ashland will wed in Columbus on the same date.

Miss Sarabell Kramer, who will become the bride of John H. VanWagner, Shelby, is the only New Year Day bride of Mansfield. She and Mr. VanWagner will be married in an open ceremony at 7:30 p. m. at the First Presbyterian church.
